When you arrive at the event, UCAS will scan your barcode ticket so that we know you've arrived.

Keep your ticket handy – if you would like to receive further information from particular exhibitors, you can scan your barcode at their stand.

If you do this, we will give them your contact details so that they can send you information such as course details or invites to open days.

If you do not want an exhibitor to have your contact details, then simply do not scan your barcode.

Don't forget, your students will need their own ticket, with their unique barcode. Having their own ticket, scanned at the stands they're interested in, also ensures that any information collected complies with data protection regulations.
